

From the time the Hilton Cincinnati Netherland Plaza opened on January 28, 1931, it has been the Queen City's premiere dining, dancing and drinking destination.

The hotel and Carew Tower were announced by John Emery in August 1929. Emery had approached the banks to underwrite his "city within a city" concept, but the banks declined the loan. Emery sold all of his stocks to finance the project himself. The plans and financing were in place when the stock market crashed in October 1929. Had Emery left his money in the stocks, he would have lost it all.

Instead, the project continued as planned.

During the time the hotel and Carew Tower was built and opened, the Great Depression was in full swing and Prohibition was nearing an end (1920-1933). Joseph Reichl, the hotel's first President and Managing Director, purchased over $30,000 in French alcohol so that when Prohibition ended, he would be able to offer them to the guests of the hotel. He said "I have taken an option of 400 cases of rare wines and liquors - about $30,000 worth, all told - that are being held for the Netherland Plaza in France. I have taken this action because I am a speculator, and I believe that circumstantial odds favor modification of the prohibition amendment. If there is modification, I shall be in a position to offer the choicest vintages in Cincinnati."

That same philosophy holds true today. The hotel and restaurants have an award-winning wine selection, creative cocktails, exclusive local microbrew, and hand-selected, single barrel bourbon programs. Our team is constantly searching for new libations that will pleasantly surprise both locals and visiting guests. We hope you enjoy!
